

Tyler Condren, until recently was a pretty typical 11 year old boy. In early April, after a trip to the pediatrician for a nagging headache Tyler was diagnosed with glioblastoma cancer. He has had brain surgery to remove the majority of the tumor. Due to its location, complete removal was not possible. Tyler underwent Radiation treatments but the cancer DID NOT respond to it. The family is currently visiting Children's Hospital regularly to find other options. They are also facing enormous financial burdens in addition to the emotional uncertainty.
